Bubba is the Master

Lefty wins first PGA major at Augusta, defeating Louis Oosthuizen on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff

MINNIPEG CTC

metronews.ca | twitter.com/metrowinnipeg | facebook.com/metrowinnipeg

NDP betting on online gambling

Provincial website.

Online gambling can be more addictive because it is always available, say psychologists Manitoba's NDP government is going to take a piece of the action when it comes to online gambling.

The province plans to have its own online casino, offering poker and other games, up and running by early next year.

Manitoba is not making gambling more available, Lotteries Minister Steve Ashton said Thursday, but only keeping up with an industry that has already spread far and wide.

"There are 2,000 sites currently, (and) an estimated $37 million that goes into online gaming, much of it which goes out of the province," Ashton said. "We view (the new site) as a way of keeping that in the province."

The site will be run in conjunction with the B.C. government, which opened its own online casino in 2010.

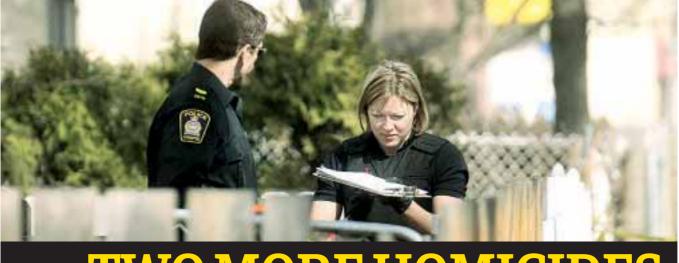

Five per cent of net revenues will be used to fund gambling-addiction programs, Ashton said — up from the normal two per cent take from traditional gambling venues.

The government predicts the online site will bring in $1.5 million in its first year and about $17 million a year by 2018. Ashton touted the government site as a safer, regulated alternative to offshore websites. "In the case of these sites, you can't really know who's behind them," he said.

Ontario and Quebec are also setting up online gambling sites. Nova Scotia's NDP government decided against the idea, noting online gambling would lure people in who would otherwise not risk their money. THE CANADIAN PRESS

TWO MORE HOMICIDES

Officers on the scene of a homicide on Maryland Street on Good Friday. Two people are dead after two separate incidents, bringing the homicide count up to 11. See page 2 for details.

Rapid transit ready to roll

The 3.6-kilometre service provided free test trips for riders Thursday, and officially opened Easter Sunday PAGE 2

Saying 'I do' all over again

Redoing wedding vows is becoming more popular with couples as a way to recommit to each other and celebrate how far they have come

02 NEWS metronews.ca Monday, April 9, 2012

NEWS

Senior wows crowds

On the web

Eighty-six-year-old Johanna Quaas could put gymnasts a quarter her age to shame. Last month, the springy silver-haired octogenarian wowed a crowd during parallel-bar and floor-exercise rotations at the Cottbus Challenger Cup in Brandenburg, Germany. Watch at metronews.ca

Flash and feathers

Eighty feathers and fluff were afloat in Bertin after a flash-mob pillow fight took to the city's famous Brandenburg Gate. Watch at metronews.ca

Mobile news

Britain's Olympic chief fears the London Games could be marred by a protest like the one that disrupted the Boat Race between Oxford and Cambridge on the River Thames. Scan the code for the full story

On the roads. Car fire, rollover keep firefighters busy

A car fire and a single-vehicle rollover had emergency personnel hopping on the Easter weekend.

Police said at about 1:45 a.m. on Sunday a car caught fire on Fowler Street near St. Johns Avenue. There was no immediate word on the cause of the blaze or if there were any injuries, Const. Jason Michalyshen said. Fire crews extinguished the blaze.

About half an hour later, emergency crews were called to the scene at the corner of Dugald Road and Ravenhurst Street where a vehicle had rolled over. Michalyshen said two people were taken to hospital with non-lifethreatening injuries, adding it was unknown at the time if alcohol played a role in the collision.

The investigation continues in both incidents.

ELISHA DACEY/METRO

Rapid transit gets the city up and moving

Magic bus. For some it was a long time coming, while for others it was a cool new ride

BERNICE PONTANILLA bernice.pontanilla@metronews.c

Winnipeggers of all ages and backgrounds hopped aboard rapid-transit buses to testdrive the city's new service late last week.

"I would call it a historical day," Mayor Sam Katz said during the opening ceremony at Fort Rouge Station on Thursday.

on Thursday.

"It's historical because we're finally becoming what I call a modern, vibrant city."

From 10 a.m. to 8 p.m., rapid-transit buses were available to ride for free — the first step in getting Winnipeggers acquainted with the 3.6-kilometre service.

Stefano Grande, executive director of Winnipeg's Downtown BIZ, climbed on one of the first morning buses departing from the University of Winnipeg.

"The bus in front of us is packed, there's a lot of people here," Grande said as the bus neared the Millennium Library. "It's a fantastic day for

Looking ahead

- As for the second phase of rapid transit, which would travel south to the University of Manitoba, Premier Greg Selinger announced funding for the site selection study.
- Rapid transit had its official opening on Easter Sunday.

our city."

St. Boniface residents Miranda Merlin and Elaine Dyke walked over the Provencher Bridge and caught the bus on Main Street.

"It's exciting and it's accessible for us to get on here and go to Pembina Highway," Merlin said, joking that the day's free fare "fits our pocketbook."

Bjorn Radstrom, an engineer who works as a planner at Winnipeg Transit, said he believes this is the biggest change in city transit history.

"We make small changes to routes here and there, but this required changing at least 13 routes and hundreds of stops," he said just before the opening ceremony.

"I'm confident it'll win over the people who ride it."

Radstrom said he'll be using rapid transit every weekday to get to work and then home again.

But it wasn't just current Winnipeg Transit employees who were at the opening ceremony—a large contingent of retired staff also attended, including Bob Ferguson, who spent 40 years with the company and held the position of manager of operations.

"I spent many years working on it," he said, adding that the rapid-transit system is even faster than he imagined it could be.

"I think it's very exciting for him," his wife, Carrie, said. "It's been a lifelong dream for many in public transit."

Crime. Pair of Good Friday murders occupying police

Residents were turned away from a Henderson Highway park on Good Friday, as police investigated one of two homicides.

Yellow tape surrounded Elmwood Park on Henderson, and two police officers in a patrol car guarded the Police were called to the park at about 5 a.m. and found a man with injuries that are "considered as suspicious in nature," an officer said.

The man, identified on Saturday as Corey Berry, 50, was later pronounced dead.

Police said autopsy results are pending and, as of Friday afternoon, no arrests had been made.

The homicide on Henderson came only hours after another one in the 600 block of Maryland Street.

Just after midnight, police were called after gunshots were heard. They found a 42-year-old man with an upper-body injury consistent with a gunshot wound.

He was taken to hospital in critical condition but succumbed to his injuries. The victim has been identified as Allan Frank Crockford. Autopsy results are pending.

Police continue to investigate both homicides.

The deaths bring the city's homicide count up to 11 for

Anyone with information is asked to call 986-6508 or Crime Stoppers at 786-TIPS (8477). BERNICE PONTANILLA/METRO

Class action

Flooded residents launch lawsuit of nearly $1B

Residents of four Manitoba First Nations are suing the province, alleging the government deliberately flooded their communities last year and didn't take proper care of them after they were forced to evacuate

A handful of residents of Pinaymootang, Little Saskatchewan, Lake St. Martin and Dauphin River First Nations filed a $950-million class-action suit last week.

The statement of claim says the province "knowingly and reck-lessly" caused the disaster by diverting too much floodwater from the swollen Assiniboine River into Lake Manitoba last spring. Lawyer Russell Raikes, who represents the nine residents, said the First Nations were out of harm's way until the diversion took place.

"They were just in the wrong place at the wrong time," he said Thursday. "They were the ones who got it."

The lawsuit, which contains allegations that have not been proved in court, must be certified by a judge before it can proceed.

Flooding was particularly bad in Manitoba last year as the province struggled well into the summer to contain the Assiniboine River. Officials operated the Portage Diversion — a channel that funnels water from the river into Lake Manitoba — over its design capacity.

Provincial flood forecasters argued last year's flood was one of the worst on record and they did nothing that artificially raised water levels.

The flooding forced many residents from their homes in April and several thousand First Nation residents still haven't been able to return. Although the province has set up dozens of temporary homes near Lake St. Martin, the lawsuit alleges Manitoba failed to quickly fix damaged homes and failed to provide "adequate long-term housing" for evacuees.

"It's very upsetting for people to be out of their homes," Raikes said. "They're not able to move back to their homes. They've lost their personal possessions, they've lost their connection to their connection to some of their family because they haven't been able to spend time together. They're all spread out."

metronews.ca Myonday, April 9, 2012

Recovery. 20-year-old communicating after double-lung transplant

JOE LOFARO Metro in Ottawa

Hélène Campbell is showing signs of recovery from her seven-hour double-lung transplant — spelling words and breathing a bit on her own, her mother tweeted Sunday.

The 20-year-old Barrhaven, Ont., woman who launched a powerful organ-donation awareness campaign after being diagnosed with advanced pulmonary fibrosis last summer underwent the double-lung transplant surgery Friday morning at the Toronto General Hospital.

On Sunday, her mother,

Hateful emails

Bible ban evokes threatening letters

An Ontario public-school board's decision to ban distribution of Gideon Bibles to its students has unleashed a torrent of threatening calls and hateful emails directed at trustees.

Survivor

"That gift of life is something that we will honour."

Alan Campbell, father of Hélène

Manon Roy Campbell, tweeted, "With an alphabetic board, Helene is spelling words to communicate when awake. She was doing some leg exercises while in bed this afternoon!"

In a previous tweet, Manon also said, "Helene continues to remain stable, she is able to do some breathing on her own but is still helped with the ventilator." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some messages to the Bluewater District School Board express racist sentiment and question trustees' patriotism.

"Allowing newcomers to Canada the ability to walk all over our heritage has got to stop before they carry us into the realm of a warring nation like the one they often left behind," one email said THE CAMADIAN PERSS

McGill student suing U.S. government for border interrogation

Lawsuit. Student's lawyers argue search was unconstitutional, but government says it has right to search at border without cause

A Montreal university student was detained at the U.S. border, held for several hours, interrogated, had his personal belongings searched and saw his computer confiscated for over a week.

What caught the authorities' attention? His doctoral research on Islamic studies, he says.

In a case that has attracted media attention in the U.S., Pascal Abidor has become embroiled in a drawn-out legal battle with the American government.

Abidor, a 28-year-old American and French dual citizen, was returning by train to Brook-

Pascal Abidor, an Islamic studies doctoral student at McGill University, poses at McGill in Montreal, Wednesday. Abidor was detained at the U.S. border and saw his computer confiscated for over a week. GRAHAM HUGHES/THE CANADIAN PRESS lyn in May 2010 when a U.S. Customs and Border Protection agent stopped him at the border in Champlain, N.Y.

The agent turned on Abidor's computer and found photos of rallies by the Hamas militant group. He says he explained that he had downloaded them from Google as part of his Mc-Gill University doctoral dissertation on the modern history of Shiites in Lebanon.

When Abidor's laptop was returned 11 days later, there was evidence that many of his personal files had been opened, he said. A federal judge heard arguments in July 2011 by the U.S. government for throwing out the lawsuit. The judge has yet to rule on whether he will dismiss the case.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Escalating costs

Jets' price tag not news to MacKay

Defence Minister Peter MacKay says he was aware two years ago that it would cost closer to $25 billion to buy a new fleet of F-35 stealth fighter jets.

That's about $10 billion more than the nearly $15 billion the government has maintained would be the price of the 65 radar-evading aircraft.

MacKay was asked on CTV's Question Period whether he was aware of the higher internal number. He said the higher number takes into account the ongoing cost of pilots' salaries and other costs associated with operating the current fleet of CF-18 jet fighters.

"Yes, and it was explained to me just that way, that the additional $10 billion was money that you could describe as sunk costs, that is what we're paying our personnel, and the fuel that is currently being expended in CF-18s, jet fuel, maintenance costs, what we are currently spending," MacKay said.
THE CANADIAN PRESS

Staffords mark third anniversary of Tori's disappearance

It has been three years since eight-year-old Victoria Stafford vanished outside her school in Woodstock, Ont., and in the midst of the trial of the man accused in her death, her family is spending a quiet day marking the grim anniversary.

Her father Rodney Stafford and his family paid a visit to Tori's grave, as they have been most days throughout the trial of Michael Rafferty in London, Ont. April 8, 2009, was the day

April 8, 2009, was the day Tori never returned home from school and never would

It's tough to recall that day and the agonizing months that followed, before her remains were discovered that July, but at the same time each April 8 is just another day without Tori, said Rodney Stafford.

"Yes, it's an anniversary, but I don't want to keep reliving that day," he said.

"There's a deeper loss because she's gone, but at the same time there's more positive out there."

Since Tori disappeared the community support for the family has been overwhelming, Stafford said.

On Easter Sunday in 2009 a candlelight vigil for Tori, then missing four days, was organized and well over 1,000 people from Woodstock and beyond flooded a parking lot in town to pray for the girl's safe return.

That same day, court has heard, Terri-Lynne McClintic was arrested on a breach of probation.

She later confessed to abducting Tori and pleaded guilty to first-degree murder.

McClintic also faces a new unrelated charge of assault causing bodily harm in connection with an incident last January at the Grand Valley Institution for Women, the prison where she is serving her sentence.

her sentence.
Rafferty, 31, has pleaded not guilty to first-degree murder, sexual assault causing bodily harm and kidnapping.

The Staffords have attended every day of the trial, though they say it's difficult to listen to the allegations against Rafferty. The support of people across the country is one thing that keeps them going, they say.

Well-wishers ask what they can do to honour Tori's memory, and for now Stafford just hopes everyone can spend time with family, as he will

"It's Easter weekend," he said. "Enjoy it. Grab your kids close."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Become a Plasma Donor

We are looking for healthy people with negative blood types to donate plasma. Plasma will be used to create a medication that can save babies lives. Plasma donors are compensated for their time.

cangeneplasma.com

(204) 771-2804

metronews.ca metronews.ca Monday. April 9, 2012

Avalanche on world's highest battlefield

Kashmir region.

At least 135 soldiers and civilians missing at entrance to Siachen Glacier

Rescue workers used bulldozers Sunday to dig through huge banks of snow following a massive avalanche a day earlier in Siachen that engulfed a military complex and buried at least 135 people.

Most of the victims were soldiers.

The avalanche occurred in a mountain battleground close to the Indian border.

More than 24 hours after the disaster at the entrance to the Siachen Glacier, no bodies have yet been recovered, said military officials.

The accident, which is on the northern tip of the divided Kashmir region claimed by both India and Pakistan, highlighted the risks of deploying troops in one of the most inhospitable places on earth.

Troops have been posted at elevations of up to 6,700 metres and have skirmished intermittently since 1984. The glacier is known as the world's highest battlefield.

The army said 240 troops and civilians worked at the scene Sunday with the aid of sniffer dogs and heavy machinery

Pakistan and India have fought three wars since 1947; two have been over Kashmir.

Conflict there began in 1984 when India occupied the heights of the 78-kilometre long glacier, fearing Pakistan wanted to claim the territory. Pakistan also deployed its troops. Both armies remain entrenched despite the ceasefire, costing the poverty-stricken countries many millions of dollars each year. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tulsa arrests. Black community terrorized in spate of shootings

Police backed by a helicopter arrested two men early Sunday and said they would face murder charges in the recent shootings that terrorized Tulsa's black community.

Three people were killed and two others were critically wounded.

Police spokesman said the two men were arrested at a home just north of Tulsa about 2 a.m. Sunday and were expected to be charged with three counts of first-degree murder and two counts of shooting with intent to kill.

While police identified the men as white and all the victims are black, authorities have not described the shootings as racially motivated and declined to discuss that issue.

Community leaders, however, expressed concern about the motivation for the shootings on Tulsa's predominantly black north side, as well as the possibility that they would provoke a vigilante response.

voke a vigilante response.

The Rev. Warren Blakney
Sr., president of the Tulsa chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a civil-rights organization, said that word of the arrests had provided a great sense of relief.

"The community once again can go about its business without fear of there being a shooter on the streets on today, on Faster morning" he said

Easter morning," he said.

Police said they linked the shootings because they happened about the same time and within a few kilometres of each other.

All five victims were out walking when they were shot. Four were found in yards, and one in the street.

Police have said they don't

Police have said they don't believe the victims knew one another. They identified the men in custody as Jake England, 19, and Alvin Watts, 32, but gave no hometowns for them

Officers said they were taken early Sunday for questioning at a downtown Tulsa police station, where they would be booked and jailed.

Tulsa police Chief Čhuck Jordan called the attacks vicious and cowardly. Police said they did not have a motive for the shootings.

Tulsa police had at least two dozen officers investigating the case, along with the FBI, the U.S. Marshals Service and other agencies.

After receiving a tip, police found the men at one spot and then followed them as they walked to another place about a half-mile away.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

60 Minutes' 'interrogator' Mike Wallace dies at 93

Obituary. Feared for his prosecutorial style, his reputation arrived for the interview before he did

"Mike Wallace is here to see you."

The 60 Minutes journalist's reputation as a pitiless inquisitor was so fearsome that it was often said that those were the most dreaded words in the English language, capable of reducing an interview subject to a shaking, sweating mess.

Wallace, who won his 21st and final Emmy Award at 89, died Saturday in the New Canaan, Conn., care facility where he had lived the last few years of his life. He was 93.

Wallace didn't just interview people. He interrogated them. He cross-examined them. Sometimes he eviscerated them. His weapons were many: Thorough research, a cocked eyebrow, a skeptical "Come on" and a question so direct sometimes it took your breath away. He was well aware that his reputation arrived at an interview before he did, said Jeff Fager, CBS News chairman and Wallace's longtime producer at 60 Minutes.

"He loved it," Fager said Sunday. "He loved that part of Mike Wallace. He loved being Mike Wallace. He loved the fact that if he showed up for an interview, it made people nervous.... He knew, and he knew that everybody else knew, that he was going to get to the truth. And that's what motivated him."

Wallace made 60 Minutes compulsively watchable, television's first newsmagazine that became appointment viewing on Sunday nights. His last interview, in January 2008, was with Roger Clemens on his alleged steroid use. Slowed by a triple bypass later that month and the ravages of time, he retired from public life.

Vatican. Pope calls on Syria to put stop to ongoing violence

Pope Benedict XVI implored the Syrian regime Sunday to heed international demands to end the bloodshed and expressed hope that the joy of Easter will comfort Christian communities suffering because of their faith.

Benedict, struggling with hoarseness and looking tired, celebrated Mass on Christianity's most joyous holy day on the flower-adorned steps of St. Peter's Basilica, before a crowd of faithful that swelled to far over 100,000 by the end of the two-hour-long ceremony.

Only hours earlier, the pontiff, who turns 85 on April 16, had led a long nighttime vigil service in the church. There have been concerns over his health and he has recently used a cane in public appearances.

a cane in public appearances.
At the end of Sunday's Mass,
Benedict moved to the basilica's central balcony to read his Easter message "to the entire world." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Peace plan for Syria delayed

A UN-brokered plan to stop the bloodshed in Syria effectively collapsed Sunday after President Bashar Assad's government raised new, last-minute demands that the country's largest rebel group swiftly rejected.

The truce plan, devised by UN-Arab League envoy Kofi Annan, was supposed to go into effect on Tuesday, with a withdrawal of Syrian forces from population centres, followed within 48 hours by a ceasefire by both sides in the uprising against four decades of repressive rule by the Assad family.

But on Sunday, Syria's Foreign Ministry said that, ahead of any troop pullback, the government needs written guarantees from opposition fighters that they will lay down their weapons.

The commander of the rebel Free Syrian Army said that while his group is ready to abide by a truce, it does not recognize the regime "and for that reason we will not give guarantees." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Carney urges smarter development of natural resources

Exports. Natural-resource industry needs to ensure it is being paid global rates for its products, Bank of Canada governor says

Part of the solution to Canada's poor export performance lies with natural resources, but simply pumping oil out the door won't suffice, says the governor of the Bank of Canada.

Mark Carney recently chastised Canadian business for being trade laggards since the 2008 recession, saying they have not done enough to infiltrate growing markets.

Carney said opportunities in natural resources abound in Canada, but they need to be developed quickly, efficiently — and sustainably.

"These opportunities exist at a time when there are other opportunities in other jurisdictions, other countries. So there is an element of competition here, and we need to be appropriately efficient in their development," Carney said in an interview with The Canadian Press.

Canadian business should count on commodities prices and the Canadian dollar staying relatively strong over the long term and calculate their costs and revenues accordingly, he said.

"The scale of the natural resources opportunities are huge (and) should be developed in a sustainable way," he stressed, opting to use the term "sustainable" at a time when federal budget directives dropped the notion of sustainable development and replaced it with "responsible" exploitation of resources. The canadian press

Pipeline. Aboriginals growing more dismayed with hearings process

The federal government's decision to put a cap on how long environmental-assessment hearings can drag on isn't expected to affect the Northern Gateway pipeline project, but aboriginal reaction to the change probably will.

Natural Resources Minister Joe Oliver says Ottawa isn't planning to fast-track the approval process for the proposed $5.5-billion pipeline, despite his government's announcement in last month's budget they would limit project reviews to 24 months.

months.

The Gateway assessment was always scheduled to be completed within that time frame.

But aboriginal leaders in British Columbia say they are becoming increasingly dismayed with the publichearing process and are now seriously considering bypassing the hearings and heading straight to court. Coastal First Nations

Coastal First Nations spokesman Art Sterritt said the cancellation of a day and a half of scheduled reviewpanel hearings in the central

Panel process

- A three-member panel is assessing the environmental effects of the project and is reviewing the Enbridge application under both the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act and the National Energy Board Act.
- Under the act, the panel will decide if the project is in the public interest. It will assess its environmental effects and make recommendations to the Conservative government.

B.C. coastal community of Bella Bella last week signalled to many aboriginals that Ottawa has already heard enough from Northern Gateway's opponents. "My guess is they are now

"My guess is they are now going to try and shut it down by the fall," said Sterritt, whose organization is an alliance of about a dozen First Nations along B.C.'s north and central coasts and Haida Gwaii.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Safety concerns

Ford recalls Focus vehicles

Ford is recalling more than 140,000 Focus compact cars because the passenger-side windshield wiper can fail.

*U.S. federal-safety regulators say a seal in the wiper motor wiring may be missing. Water can get inside and cause the wiper to stop working, increasing the risk of a crash.

There are 19,062 Focus vehicles in Canada that are involved in the recall.

Market Minute

100.62¢ US (+0.26¢)

12,103.11 (-75.55)

$103.31 US (+$1.84)

GOLD $1,630.10 US (+$16)

Natural gas: $2.089 US (-5.2¢) Dow Jones: 13,060.14 (-14.61)

COMWAVE IS KNOCKING OUT THE COMPETITION WITH OUR LOWEST RATE GUARANTEE

Lowest Rate Guarantee

No matter where you call, no matter what rate you currently pay...
WE'LL BEAT IT... GUARANTEED!

Make long distance calls even from your mobile phone

www.comwave.ca

1-866-210-0444

White Common is then but accompany to our submitting Common reasons throught in learned day more in proving in white excitons of part size. (2006) PM 2007. In these PM conductors is brained on programme of the company adversarial control accompany and the company and the set of the conductors of the

START SAVING TODAY! ALL FEATURES FREE

All features FREE

- FREE VoiceMail FREE Call Waiting

- Risk free trial period

If you're not 100% satisfied, you pay nothing!

Keep your existing Phone Number

www.comwave.ca

1-866-210-0444

metr⊕ VOICES

WINNIPEG'S WATER-PARK DREAM

URBAN COMPASS

I can remember going on family trips though the Midwest U.S. as a kid, and whenever we'd stop at a tourist information centre I'd see brochures for a magical place called "Wisconsin Dells." Filled with water parks and hotels and duck boats, it looked like paradise, and I swore that some day I would go there. Well, if Mayor Sam Katz and Winnipeg's loyal band of water-park enthusiasts get their way, I may never have to pack my trunks. In what seems like the 12th version of this plan, the mayor announced last week that a budget hotel chain operator from Alberta might come to town (with the help of

As an adult ...

"While I once thought that amusement parks and big shopping malls were the greatest things on the planet, I now see the more sustainable benefits of simple attractions like public parks, bike paths and walkable neighbourhoods."

$7 million in city money) to make my childhood dreams of corkscrew slides and lazy rivers come true.

Trouble is, my ideas of what makes a great community have matured a bit since I was 11 years old. While I once thought that amusement parks and big shopping malls were the greatest things on the planet, I now see the more sustainable benefits of simple attractions like public parks, bike paths and walkable neighbourhoods.

Which isn't to say I wouldn't enjoy having a water park. I like nearly drowning in a giant wave pool as much as the next guy. But I do question the need for the city to issue a $7-million bribe to get one built, and I'm downright baffled at the notion a water park will somehow make us a "world-class" destination.

You see, when I think "world class," cities like London or New York or Vienna come to mind. Yet here we are desperately trying to compete with Grand Forks, Steinbach and Wisconsin Dells (population: 2,418).

If the city really wants to invest in the water-park industry, then it should work with Economic Development Winnipeg to commission a market-research study to find whether a facility will sink or swim. If it's positive, then shop the results of that study around to every water-park operator in North America, and get the thing built solely with private money.

As for the $7 million, there's no shortage of kid-friendly community centres, pools and arenas in desperate need of renewal. Or the city could look at partnering with a non-profit that has experience managing aquatic facilities — the YMCA/YWCA is an obvious candidate — to develop a major new recreation centre.

It might not make the big splash of a "world-class" water park, but it would be the kind of sensible investment in community infrastructure that Winnipeg needs to make it a better

Worth mentioning. Need a special figurine for your wedding cake? Call Alberta

Spring brings showers, flowers, and dreams of the perfect wedding, complete with the perfect table settings, decorative bows, aisle runners and stationary holders.

But many couples heading for the altar might be surprised to learn that the founder of the global company that's supplying the decorations for their special day — right down to personalized bride-and-groom figurines for their wedding cakes — got his start in the business when he was still playing in the rough-and-tumble world of junior hockey. Meet Rick Brink of Weddingstar, a company with 70 employees and warehouses in North America, Europe and Australia with its headquarters in an unlikely location — just outside Medicine Hat, Alta.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Retracing Titanic's path

check-in area for the MS Balmo ral Titanic memorial cruise All aboard

Cruise recreates experience 100 years later

Mary Beth Crocker Dearing and her husband Tom Dear-ing from Newport, Ky., pose for the media in period costume as they wait to board the MS Balmoral cruise ship in Southampton, England, on Sunday.

Nearly 100 years after the Titanic went down, a cruise with the same number of passengers aboard set sail to retrace the ship's voyage, including a visit to the location where it sank. The Titanic Memorial Cruise departed Sunday from Southampton, where the Titanic left on its maiden voyage. Organizers are trying to recreate the on-board experience, minus the disaster, from the food to a band playing music from that era. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

$122,000 US as part of a unique exhibition on display at Belfast City Hall,

Panel

Register at metropolitanpanel.ca and take the quick poll

Are you going to make the tax deadline?

@JavOnrait: At the @NHLJets game in Winnipeg. I can confirm two things: 1. These fans are really freaking loud 2. Grant Clitsome's nick-

@TheERABrohm:

OK first glitch Bus was in the 137/161 spot and signed "not in service" then switched to 160 and promptly left! #Winnipeg @204problems:

beautiful as other cities you see on tumblr #WinnipegProblems

@AndrewPenner31: Awesome ovation by the Winnipeg crowd after Stamkos scored his 60th goal. Such a classy city when it comes to hockey. #canada @kenthecurler:

It was a great year for hockey fans in Winnipeg. This city proved once again we always de-

Our Lady Peace had a clumsy path to new disc

Transformation. Band came to the brink of a breakup before enlisting the help of a new producer who helped them push their sound forward

The past decade hasn't been an entirely peaceful time for Our Lady Peace.

Frontman Raine Maida concedes that diminishing record sales, a hobbled industry and an occasional feeling of creative aimlessness brought the Toronto band closer to the brink of a breakup than they've otherwise been in nearly 20 years of playing together. But Maida says the altrock quartet stayed united

Toughing it out

"I think we all really knew in our hearts we hadn't got there yet."

Our Lady Peace frontman Raine Maida on the band sticking together through tough times so they could put out their latest album, Curve.

in large part because they could sense a creative breakthrough was around the corner, and he feels they've found it with new disc, Curve. "I think the last 10 years were probably the most tumultuous, and we never broke up because even when we were really on the cusp of it — of walking away from this — because we hadn't made this record," Maida said during a recent interview in Toronto. "I think we all really knew in our hearts we hadn't got there yet."

The transformative process began the first time the band got into a room with producer Jason Lader (known for helming discs by Maroon 5, Rilo Kiley and Elvis Costello), who was blunt in summing up his thoughts on some of the material the band was working with at the time.

And Maida said it was crude candour, not tact, that the band needed. "It's like when you're in a relationship for a long time with someone — it gets harder and harder to pull the right things out of people," he said. "I can only push Jeremy (Taggart) so hard as a drummer and he's only going to say certain things to me as a lyricist ... it's all baby steps. But then we brought Jason in and it's like no baby steps. No filter. 'This sucks. You guys don't listen to this kind of music, why would you make a record like this? Let's challenge you."

For Maida, the process meant revisiting records that inspired him — early Peter Gabriel and David Bowie — to draw inspiration. The band pushed to find deeper grooves, unusual rhythms and new textures, adding keyboards (or guitars that sounded like keyboards) and new vocal wrinkles to subtly tweak their sound.

It was important to Maida that the band not stray too far from their traditional sound, but instead push it forward.

Largely, the new tunes sound a little subtler, a little funkier. The supple Window Seat slowly heats to a boil, Fire in the Hen House dances atop a nimble bassline while albumcloser Mettle mixes spokenword recordings over delicately plucked guitar strings. The recordings in question

The recordings in question came from conversations conducted with 74-year-old Canadian boxing legend George Chuvalo. Maida — a lifelong fan of boxing and mixed martial arts — went to Chuvalo's home with a tape recorder to talk about the boxer's life, which was racked with hardship. Chuvalo lost three of his sons to suicide or addiction and his first wife also took her own life. "There's so much depth to George," Maida said. "He's a fighter in and out of the ring."

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Box office

Easter feast for Hunger Games

Film fans are still forking over for The Hunger Games, which has taken in $33.5 million to lead the box office for a third-straight weekend. According to studio estimates Sunday, The Hunger Games raised its domestic total to $302.8 million. It easily out-earned two returning favourites, the American Pie sequel American Reunion and a 3D version of the blockbuster Titanic. Both newcomers opened solidly, though. American Reunion pulled in $21.5 million, the lowest haul since the 1999 original but still a decent return for a comedy franchise whose last chapter came nine years ago. Titanic in 3D reeled in $17.4 million over the weekend, raising its domestic take to $25.7 million since opening Wednesday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On the web

Group New Multitudes honour Woody Guthrie with new music based on his Millions of songs – access anywhere.

Enter now at clubmetro.com and you could WIN a year of unlimited music on Rdio – the best way to discover, play and share music.

metre 10 DISH metronews.ca Monday, April 9, 2012

Stick a fork in it: Klum and Seal are done

There goes any hope for a reconciliation: Three months after announcing their separation, Heidi Klum has officially filed divorce papers against husband Seal in California, citing "irreconcilable differences," according to TMZ. The couple's prenuptial agreement reportedly ensures they'll retain separate property and assets, and Klum is seeking primary custody of the couple's four children, with visitation rights for Seal.

Will Hunger Games director helm the sequel?

After introducing the blockbuster franchise, director Gary Ross will reportedly not be returning to helm the second Hunger Games film, according to the Plavlist.

Ross and the franchise's studio, Lionsgate, were involved in a "tough" back and forth over the deal for Catching Fire, the second installment in Suzanne Collins' book series. Ross was reportedly paid $3 million for the first film, plus five per cent of its profits. Deadline's Nikki Finke, however, insits the reports are premature, and that Ross has been on vacation with his family while the news of his walking away from the franchise has spread.

@SethMacFarlane

This country is so asleep it's kind of a shock that the rest of the world doesn't write on us.

@SteveMartinToGo

I thought yesterday was the first day of the rest of my life but it turns out today is.

@MissKellyO

I love it when my Dad calls me up just for a chat!

@rihannaIf u love something let it go...if it doesn't come back, hunt it down and kill it

You know you wanna BUST OUR BALLS Win up to S10,000 or a life altering Rock Experience. S2 CIT FM CLASSIC ROCK Enter at 92citifm.ca

METRO DISH

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Amanda Bynes arrested for DUI

THE WORD Dorothy Robinson scene@metronews.ca

Nickelodeon star Amanda Bynes, 26, showed she isn't that innocent by pulling a very Lohan-esque move over the weekend: She drunkenly careened into a police car in the wee hours of Friday morning.

According to People magazine, the Hairspray actress was arrested for driving under the influence in Los Angeles after colliding with a police car at around 3 a.m. on Friday, after partying at LA.'s Greystone Manor Club.

"A Los Angeles County Sheriff's Deputy in a marked black and white radio car was stopped at the intersection of ... Robertson Boulevard and Santa Monica Boulevard preparing to turn right onto Santa Monica Boulevard when a black BMW driven by actress Amanda Bynes attempted to pass the right of the radio car, colliding with the right rear quarter panel of the radio car," the West Hollywood Sheriff's office said in a statement.

"There was minor paint transfer damage to both vehicles. Amanda Bynes was subsequently arrested for driving under the influence and booked at West Hollywood Sheriff's Station."

The actress sported pink-highlighted hair in her mug shot, and after posting $5,000 for bail, she was spotted the next day in the same leg-baring outfit to retrieve her BMW from an impound lot, according to TMZ.

Look on the bright side,

Look on the bright side, Bynes: The "I'm not drunk. I'm just kinda over it and bored" face you're trying to work in your booking photo is some of the best acting work you've done in years.

Jason Trawick to share legal control over Britney Spears

Poor Britney Spears. Sure, she's a famous millionaire, has two cute kids (we can overlook for a moment with whom she had them) and a killer body.

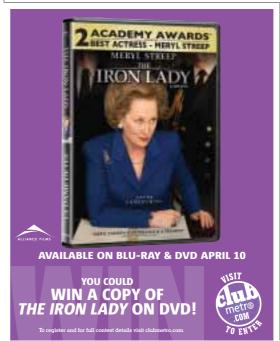

them), and a killer body. But she's still apparently incapable of looking after her own affairs.

It was announced over the weekend that her fiancé, Jason Trawick, has reportedly filed a petition to be added as one of her conservators, according to E! News.

If approved, Trawick would be in charge of Spears' general wellbeing, while the singer's father would still be in charge of her multimilion-dollar fortune. Per People, a conservator like Trawick has the legal authority to make decisions over a person's food, lothing and medical cone.

clothing and medical care. Since 2008, Spears' father has held legal control over her, her career, and her fortune after the singer suffered a psychological breakdown.

Sad. Usually you hope a marriage will be an equal partnership in all affairs, but it seems like Spears, 30, is still so medicated/sick that she's incapable of self-sufficiency. This is what America does to its famous young women. Amanda Bynes, take note.

metronews.ca
Monday, April 9, 2012

FAMILY

Walk down the aisle faithfully (again)

Vow renewal. Saying, 'I do' a second (or third) time reminds couples of how far they have come Kathryn Quinn of East Lansing, Mich., is approaching her 11-year anniversary. She and her husband recently renewed their vows on a trip to the Virgin Islands.

"I'm so glad we did it," she said. "This was our first trip away from our children. It was at a beautiful location. The vow renewal was meaningful, and gave us a chance away from our daily life to really celebrate our time together and be grateful for our relationship."

Recommitting to a relationship through vow renewals is becoming more popular, said Susan Southerland, president of Just Marry!, Inc. wedding planners in Orlando.

"In the last three to five years, they've become extremely popular. We've always done one or two throughout the year, but all of a sudden it's become a buge request."

huge request."
Winifred Brunston of Lancaster, Calif., lost her husband last year. She enjoys looking back to their 35th anniversary, in 2004, when they renewed their vows in the same small church where they got married.

Brunston feels marriage vows mean more over the years because "it lets the spouse know you still love them enough to marry them again."

Anja Winikka, editor of the wedding TheKnot.com, believes one reason for the spike of interest in vow renewals is that some celebrity couples have done it.

couples have done it.

Tori Spelling and Dean
McDermott filmed their vow renewal for their reality TV show. Holly Robinson Peete tweeted photos after she and former NFL quarterback Rodney Peete recently celebrated their 17-year anniversary by renewing their vows on top of the Empire State Building in New York. Mariah Carey and Nick Cannon are the most consistent; they renew their yows every year

their vows every year.

"You hear about it, and just like any trends in the wedding industry and in decor and fashion, celebrities certainly do influence us in that way," says Winikka.

Southerland says she recently helped a couple who renew their vows every year. "It's always a surprise, and the husband plans it," she said.

Whether you renew your vows annually or just once, in a small ceremony or as part of a vacation, the cost of saying "I do — again" can vary.
"You can do something

"You can do something that's very simple, that's just the husband and wife standing up with a photographer, and that can be less than $1,000. Or you can do something where you've invited a bunch of people. I've had people spend upwards of 50 or 60 thousand," Southerland said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Web

When kids google you

While I'm proud to be a mommy blogger, I recently found myself in a position where I actually thought, "Crap, I think I may have to stop writing about motherhood." This was thanks to Google. Or rather, thanks to my daughter, who recently learned what Google search is and how to use it. It started when, inspired by her future stepsisters who told her dolls cannot talk, she Google searched "Are stuffed animals real?" One of the things that came up was a post I had written about how my daughter freaked out when she took Ellie (her stuffed animal) into a pool and poor Ellie drowned. (Of course I gave Ellie mouth-tomouth and she was fine.)

She read the piece. Then: Tears. Lots and lots of tears. "Why did you write that?" my daughter asked, crying, as the truth sunk in. My heart broke.

No matter how open and close I am with my daughter, I just know I'll have a lot of explaining to do one day thanks to all my writing about her. I'm trying to look at the positives, and there is only one thing I can come up with. I've never had a sex tape leaked. And I never plan to film a sex tape. And, I suppose, I'm glad she can...read? REBECCA ECKLER, MOMMYISH.COM

Casting Call

Say Cheese for Gap

Gap is looking for the next faces of BabyGap and GapKids.

Up to five photos and a description of babies ages four and under or kids ages five to 12 can be posted at gap.com/castingcall between April 2 and 22.

Winners will receive a $1,000 gift card to Gap and a $10,000 donation made in their name to Communities in Schools, a Canadian NFP helping kids to stay in school.

DELIA MACPHERSON, METRO

On the Web

Divorce expo a low-key counterpoint to multi-milon-dollar wedding industry

Sharability

hard

easy

metr⊕ FOOD/GOING GREEN

Upgrade these casual bites

Chicken Fingers. Kids will love dipping these bites into the Caesar Mayonnaise

These chicken fingers will make a perfect weeknight supper. Children love them, so you will have an enthusiastic audience, and the adults in the crowd will appreciate them as well.

The chicken fingers have a kicked-up crust and tasty Caesar dipping sauce to serve them up with.

Toss in some chopped romaine lettuce for a new twist for your next Chicken Caesar

- 1. Cut chicken into strips and dredge in flour. Coat chicken with mayonnaise.
- 2. In a shallow dish, mix together breadcrumbs, rind, caiun spice, garlic powder, salt and pepper; toss chicken in mixture to coat evenly.

- 3. Place chicken strips on a parchment paper lined baking sheet. Bake in 200 C (400 F) oven for about 25 minutes, turning them halfway or until no longer pink inside. Serve with Caesar Mayon-
- 4. Caesar Mayonnaise: In a

- 2 boneless, skinless chicken
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) whole wheat flour
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) mayonnaise
- 250 ml (1 cup) whole-wheat or panko breadcrumbs
- 10 mL (2 tsp) grated lemon rind
- 5 ml (1 tsp) cajun spice
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) garlic powder
- · Pinch each salt and freshly ground pepper

Caesar Mayonnaise

- 125 ml (1/2 cup) mayonnaise • 30 ml (2 tbsp) freshly grated
- Parmesan cheese • 15 ml (1 tbsp) chopped fresh parsley
- 5 ml (1 tsp) chopped capers • 5 mL (1 tsp) grated lemon
- rind
- 5 ml (1 tsp) lemon juice
- Pinch each salt and pepper bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, cheese, parsley, capers, lemon rind and juice, salt and pepper.

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ HELLMAN'S/ ADAPTED BY EMILY RICHARDS (PROFES-SIONAL HOME ECONOMIST, COOKBOOK AUTHOR. TV CELEBRITY CHEF. FOR MORE VISIT EMILYRICHARDSCOOK.CA.)

The green way to clean stáinless steel

QUFFN OF GREEN

What's a non-toxic cleaner for stainless-steel appliances like my fridge? Eileen. Ottawa

Did you know Canadians spend more than $275 million a year on household cleaning products?
We buy these products to fight germs, streaks, stains and odours to keep our homes sparkling clean. But despite what the TV commercials tell us, we don't need a separate stainless steel cleaner, floor cleaner, tub and tile cleaner and counter cleaner. Save your money and simplify!

Choose the smallest number of eco-friendly. multi-purpose products that will help achieve your household cleaning goals. Speaking of simple, the best way to clean streaks smears and smudges from stainless-steel appliances is to use food-grade cleaning ingredients - white vinegar and olive oil.

Use olive oil and vinegar to clean streaks and smears. ISTOCK IMAGES

Step one: dampen a rag with plain olive oil. Then, wipe the surface of your stainless steel fridge. Step two: flip the same rag over and pour enough white vinegar to dampen. Now, wipe the stainless steel surface a second time - don't forget the fridge door handle.

Olive oil is great for lifting dirt. It also makes a great floor and furniture polish when you add a splash of lemon juice and a squirt of vinegar. And white vinegar will cut grease, deodorize and disinfect. In the midst of a homecleaning product detox? Take our survey at davidsuzuki.org/whatsinside and be entered to win fabulous prizes. We all win when we make eco-friendlier choices. FOR MORE QUEEN OF GREEN VISIT DAVIDSUZUKI.ORG/GREENLIVING

metronews.cal WORK/EDUCATION 13

Feeling confined to your office cubicle? Beware of work burnout

Down at your desk.

Study finds workers who feel obligated to stay with their company more likely to experience stress.

Whether you feel a sense of obligation about your work or are staying on the job because you don't see an alternative, new research suggests the end result for employees could be the same: burnout.

According to Montreal researchers, the decision to stick with your company — whether by choice or because of slim pickings in the job market — can lead to emotional exhaustion, a chronic state of physical and mental depletion resulting from continuous stress and excessive job demands.

The study was conducted by Concordia University, Universite de Montreal and HEC Montreal. The findings were published in the journal Human Relations.

Concordia assistant professor and study co-author Alexandra Panaccio and her colleagues surveyed 260 workers from various industries, including information technology, health services, engineering and architecture. Among participants — aged 34 on average — 33 per cent held managerial positions, while 50 per cent worked in the public sector.

The study found that

But why

"It may be that, in the absence of an emotional bond with the organization, commitment based on obligation is experienced as a kind of indebtedness — a loss of autonomy that is emotionally draining over time."

Alexandra Panaccio, assistant professor, Concordia University people who stay in their organizations because they feel an obligation toward their employer are more likely to experience burnout.

A similar effect can also be seen among workers who stay the course because they don't see alternatives for employment outside their current organizations.

Researchers also measured various types of organizational commitments, like whether employees identified with a company's goals and values and whether they felt an obligation to stay. "It may be that, in the ab-

"It may be that, in the absence of an emotional bond with the organization, commitment based on obligation is experienced as a kind of indebtedness — a loss of autonomy that is emotionally draining over time," said Panaccio in a release.

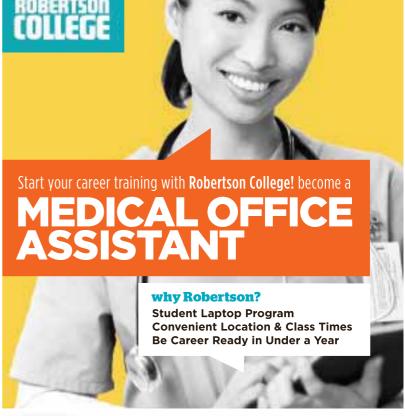

THE CANADIAN PRESS

When feeling good feels bad

Researchers also observed that individuals with high self-esteem are most affected by a perceived lack of employment alternatives.

 The result is possibly because that perception is inconsistent with their self-view as important and competent people.

call 204.800.7933 today to get started.

Classes start April 30!

→ WWW.ROBERTSONCOLLEGE.COM

SPORTS

Quoted

SPORTS

"Sure, we're in a tough division, but we have talent. We have to hope for good health. If that happens, we don't need guys to do crazy, overboard things to win. If everybody does what is expected, we should have a good year. If we just do our jobs, we should be fine."

Toronto right-fielder Jose Bautista on the Blue Jays' chances in the AL East this season. The Blue Jays just missed a sweep of the Cleveland Indians in their season-opening ser-ies with 4-3 loss on Sunday. Great expectations, and a home opener on Monday night that sold out in less than an hour, will greet the Jays in their return to Canada.

"I think that not only Toronto, but all of Canada is ready to embrace this team.

Blue Jays manager John Farrell.

On the web

etween the long-time rivals has only gone up over the past week. The war of words continued Sunday and Flyers forward Scott Hartnell says he expects a "bloodway. Scan the code for

Bubba brilliant with Masters on the line

Golf. Watson makes remarkable shot from trees on playoff hole to secure green jacket Bubba Watson started the day by watching the rarest shot in golf. He ended another thrill-aminute Sunday at Augusta National with a signature shot of his own to win the Masters.

So deep in the trees right of the 10th fairway that he couldn't even see the green, Watson hooked a wedge off the pine needles from 155 yards to about 10 feet from the hole.

"He hit an unbelievable shot there.... This is not one I felt like I played badly. Great stuff to him. He deserves it."

Louis Oosthuizen after losing in a final-round playoff to Bubba Watson at the Masters.

That set up a par, good enough to beat Louis Oosthuizen on the second playoff hole.
"If I've got a swing, I've got a shot," Watson said.

It was Oosthuizen who set the tone for this wild day with a double eagle — only the fourth in Masters history — on the par-5 second hole when his 4-iron from 253 yards landed on the front of the green and rolled some 90 feet into the hole for a two.

"Somehow it fell in my hands today," said Watson, who closed with a 68. "It's amazing. It's a blur, the last nine holes I don't remember anything. Somehow I guess I cried all my tears out."

He was blubbering hard on the 10th green, shoulders heaving, for so many reasons. Just two weeks ago, he and his wife adopted a baby boy, Caleb. The first person on the green was his mother — his father died right after the Ryder Cup in 2010. And suddenly, the power-ful lefty with a million shots in the bag was a major champion.

"I never got this far in my dreams," Watson said in Butler cabin, where defending cham-pion Charl Schwartzel helped him into the green jacket.

Former British Open champion Oosthuizen was trying to join Gene Sarazen in the 1935 Masters as the only major champions to win with a double eagle in the final round. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NHL

Noel expects more from Jets in Season 2

Claude Noel may have fishing on his mind with the NHL season done for his team, but the Winnipeg lets coach doesn't want to be breaking out the rod and reel this soon next year.

"The bar has got to go up and we have to raise it." Noel said Sunday. "I was real patient this year, which was real good for me and I think it was good for the team.

"I'll be less patient next

The Jets, who played as the Atlanta Thrashers last season, finished 22nd in the NHL at 37-35-10 after Saturday's 4-3 loss to Tampa Bay and missed the playoffs - again. The franchise made only one playoff appearance in 12 seasons in Atlanta, bowing out in the first round in 2007 to the New York Rangers.

Reborn as the Jets, the team played to packed houses at every home game at the MTS Centre, made more money for their owners than expected and don't have to worry about fan support next season. "We don't want to be standing here in April next year going down this same path." Noel said. "Our attitude has to be better.... That's what I want them to think about over the summer." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Curling. Howard back on top of the world

Canada's Glenn Howard defeated Scotland's Tom Brewster 8-7 to win the gold medal Sunday at the world men's curling championship.

Howard made a draw to the button in the extra end for the victory in Basel, Switzerland.

"Surreal is the best word I can come up with," Ontario's Howard said. "I can't believe we actually pulled this thing off."

Brewster had a chance to win it in the 10th end but his stone slid out and he settled for

In the extra end, Canada lead Craig Savill hit two nice ticks and teammates Brent Laing and Wayne Middaugh came through with the necessary takeouts to set up Howard's winning throw.

"It's for the world championship and there's a lot on the line but Glenn makes it 99 times out of 100," Middaugh said. "That's why he's throwing the last puck and there's nobody better to have doing it."

It was the second straight year that Brewster had to settle for silver. He lost to Manitoba's Jeff Stoughton in last year's final in Regina.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

Glenn Howard's previous world championship wins came in 1987, 1993 and

- Sunday's victory was Canada's 34th world championship since the first event in 1959.
- Sweden won bronze earlier Sunday as Sebastian Kraupp defeated Norway's Thomas Ulsrud 9-8.

Across

- 1 Mediocre
- 5 Sibling, for short
- 8 Low voice
- 12 Chew the fat
- 13 Young fellow
- 14 Engaged with
- 15 "— She Sweet?"
- 16 Pyrenees dweller
- 18 Tile art
- 20 Glosses
- 21 Stir-fry pans
- 23 More, to Manuel
- 24 Moderately slow melodies
- 28 Mail org.
- 31 "Gosh"
- 32 Musical transition
- 34 Japanese pond fish 35 "How clumsy of me
- 37 Human-like robots
- 39 Greek vowel
- 41 Smell
- 42 U.S.A. neighbour
- 45 Morale
- 49 Male hormone
- 51 Tortoise's rival
- 52 Versifier
- 53 Snakelike swimmer
- 54 Eager
- 55 Remnants
- 56 Firmament
- 57 Capone foe

Down

- 1 Con game 2 Major U.S. river
- 3 Without (Fr.)
- 4 Capital of 42-Across
- 5 Dark brew 6 Scooted
- 7 Probability
- 8 Department
- 9 Social doings at a lodge
- 10 Musial or Laurel
- 11 Half the offspring 17 Resistance unit
- 19 Charged bits
- 22 Sheet-music
- symbol 24 Past
- 25 Ultra-modernist
- 26 Hinged (on)
- 27 Just like that
- 29 Legume holder
- 30 Kin of 5-Across 33 Cupid's alias
- 36 Opens
- 38 Warbucks' Annie,
- e.g. 40 Commotion
- 42 Part of a Dracula costume
- 46 Great review
- 43 In due course 44 Reacts to time

12 15 18 19 24 31 35 38 39 40 42 43 47 49 52 54 55

- 47 Rainbow
- 48 Kennedy and Danson
- 50 "A mouse!"

	2		6		4	9	8
					9			6
1						4		5
	5		8			1	9
				3
	4	9			7		3
5		2						9
3			4
	7	4	3		2		6

How to play

Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.

2	4	6	D	7	3	1	8	1
3	В	7	5	.1	2	9	4
5	1	9	5	3	4	7	6	1
8	7	2	4	+	3	5	1	1
8	3	+	7	8	6	4	2	1
4	9	5	1	2	8	3	7	- 6
9	2	4	3	ō	1	ű	5	1
7	6	B	5	4	9	2	3	ij
1	5	3	2	8	7	0	9	N

Yesterday's Sudoku

Cryptoquip

How to play This is a substitution cipher where one letter stands for another. Eg: If X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle.

QG CHD'OT BXZINQIS PHKT MHIQGTOHDP NOTTP, QN'P BHPPQAXT NLZN CHD

AT Z MTWZO Vesterday's Cryptoguise SOME YOGURT GOT BANNED FROM THE HIGH-CLASS COUNTRY CLUB FOR NOT BEING CULTURED ENOUGH. Today's Cryptoquip Clue: D equals U

TUESDAY

**

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

WEDNESDAY

JENNA KHAN WEATHER SPECIALIST

ing." WEEKDAYS 5:30 AM

BT BREAKFAST TELEVISION

Aries | March 21 - April 20. New faces and new places beckon this coming week, so get out and about and have a good time.

Taurus | April 21 - May 21.

Your ideas may seem sensible to you but other people clearly have doubts and you will have to work hard to convince them.

I Gemini | May 22 - June 20.

Everything seems right with your world and what happens today will confirm your belief that the gods of ick are very much on your side.

Gancer | June 21 - July 22. If you feel uncomfortable with something you are doing it is most likely your conscience trying to warn you that you are on the wrong track.

Leo | July 23 - Aug. 22. There is no point arguing with people whose beliefs and opinions are so very difent to your own.

W Virgo | Aug. 23 - Sept. 22.

Someone you meet today will make such an impression on you that you actually want to be like them.

Don't attach too much importance to what you see or hear around u this comina week.

M Scorpio | Oct. 23 - Nov.

21. Your challenge this week is to keep your more negative emotions under lock and key, even when certain people are clearly trying to provoke you into doing something intemperate. Sagittarius | Nov. 22 - Dec.

21. According to the planets you will accomplish more over the next few days if you take a relaxed view of er people's transgressions

り Capricorn | Dec. 22 - Jan 20.

No matter how many things have gone wrong in your life it will all start going right again when Mars turns direct on the 14th, Between now and then just try to relax. You've been far too intense of late.

Aquarius | Jan. 21 - Feb 18. Look on the bright side today even if your world seems to be coming rt at the seams.

Pisces | Feb. 19 - March 20.

What you need to realize now is that you can have only a limited effect on your environment. Once you "get" that fact you won't feel so tempted to interfere in other people's lives which only makes matters worse.

Caption Contest

ANDREW RROWNRILL / THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"So, does Bob know where we're heading?" Eric B

WagJag.com

DEAL OF THE DAY!

GET DEALS ON YOUR PHONE: Phone

Bug For: $49

$49 FOR THE ORIGINAL FUN RIDE ZIP LINE FROM JUNGLE GYMS CANADA (A $99 VALUE)

Regular Price: 579

You Save: 550

liscount-

51%

$30 FOR $100 TOWARDS ADULT PRODUCTS AND NOVELTIES FROM OH BEHAVE LOVE SHOP

$49 FOR A PAIR OF SHOES FROM SHORTY CAPONE (UP TO $320 VALUE)

$19 FOR A 3-MONTH WEIGHT LOSS AND/OR PERSONALIZED TRAINING PROGRAM FROM EXERSCIZ SOLUTIONS (A $104 VALUE)

Wag Jag com and TELUS

Are Proud To Work Together To Give TELUS Wireless Subscribers

$10 WagJag Credit Every Month!

Visit www.wagjag.com/telus

Visit: WagJag.com

Follow us on:

facebook.com/wagjag @wagjagwinnipeg

Hurry to Wag Jag.com to purchase local deals before time runs out.